

Animal Suits is a Sydney based importer of “kigurumi” aka animal onesies, the craze that has swept across Australia! It started as a fun side project back in June 2012 after the owner, Mike Langford, first saw an animal onesie and realized the potential. Research uncovered that they had already been a big hit in the UK and US, so with a bit of digging around Alibaba, and a few air shipped samples, he found his preferred Supplier and placed his first order for 300 onesies in 12 different styles.

Kigurumi is the Japanese word for costumed characters, and the original supplier, Sazac, was based in Japan. He managed the shipping himself, but things were slow and expensive. Animal Suits contacted Stockwells to manage the Customs importing process, which happened without any issues and in August 2013 www.animalsuits.com.au was launched! Soon the production moved to China as the demands grew and efficiencies were sought. Animal Suits contracted Stockwells to manage the end to end shipping and customs clearance, cutting transport costs and overall admin down considerably.

The latest shipment was Animal Suits’ first full container load. The store has now expanded to over 35 styles of adult animal suits including a very popular Disney range, and 10 styles of kids animal onesies. The kids photo shoot was adorable but complete chaos – what’s the old saying about never work with kids and animals?!

Kids dressed as animals is a sight to behold!

Summer styles are coming soon, plus some exciting (and scary) styles for Halloween. Time to join the fun and release your inner animal!
